

CRIMINAL HISTORY SEARCHES

County, Federal & Statewide

Description:

The best place to search for a criminal record is at the original source, the courthouse where the record originated. Whether it's the county court or the federal district court, this is where you will find the most accurate and up to date information. Safer Places, Inc. has established a national network of professional court researchers. When you request a court records search in any county or federal district court in the country, our system automatically sends your request to a local researcher that knows how to navigate the court system in that jurisdiction.

Some states aggregate all of their county criminal records into what's referred to as a statewide repository. Where publicly available, we provide you with the option of searching the statewide repository in lieu of or in addition to the individual county courts.

A note of caution: One search covering an entire state may sound great, but not all statewide repositories are updated regularly and it is possible to miss a record when searching at this level. Please talk to us about the pros & cons of using statewide repositories.

Features:

A county or federal district court search yields the most accurate and up to date criminal record information available. If your applicant has a criminal record in a given jurisdiction, this is the best way to find it.

Also, if you use our national database criminal search, and it shows a record possibly matching your applicant, a "real time" county records search is the best way to verify the accuracy and completeness of the database results.

Benefits:

Assuring that your applicants do not have a criminal history that may indicate they could be unfit for the position you are filling means: a safer work environment, potentially lower turnover, reduced chances of litigation by customers and co-workers and/or reduced chances of employee theft.

How it Works:

Safer Places, Inc. clients log on to our easy to use, secure on line ordering page. Input your applicant's information and click submit. Our system will forward your request to a professional, local court researcher in the jurisdiction where you desire to search. When the results are ready, (usually within 72 hours or less) you'll receive an email asking you to log back on to our secure web site and view/print-out the results. Selecting the right people with confidence, just got easier!
